What is the free-rider problem?

Select one:
- a. When people say they support a social movement (SM) but do not do any of the work
- b. When people participate in a social movement (SM) out of moral obligation
- c. When social movement organizations (SMOs) provide benefits for their constituents and run out of resources
- d. When people benefit from a social movement (SM) but do not participate in it

Doug McAdams introduces us to the term "cognitive liberation" or the belief that people have the capacity to enact change. Cognitive liberation is a __________ protest activity.

Select one:
- a. product of
- b. cause of
- c. both cause and product of
- d. precursor to
Question 3
Not yet answered
Points out of 1.00
Flag question

Doug McAdams describes the volunteers who helped register black voters during freedom summer. They were primarily

Select one:
- a. poor, urban Black youth
- b. middle- and upper-class Blacks
- c. elite, idealistic whites
- d. minorities of all social backgrounds

Question 4
Not yet answered
Points out of 1.00
Flag question

Of those who volunteered to participate in Freedom Summer, some were no-shows. What factor had the strongest influence on who participated and who didn’t?

Select one:
- a. biographical availability
- b. social networks
- c. attitudes and beliefs
- d. all of the above
Question 5
Not yet answered
Points out of 1.00
Flag question

Who are the radical Islamists?
Select one:
- a. those who are skeptical of modern organizations
- b. men of color
- c. educated, modern men
- d. poor, uneducated men

Question 6
Not yet answered
Points out of 1.00
Flag question

Kurzman spends a lot of his article comparing radical Islamists with the Taliban. Whereas the Taliban sough to reintroduce tradition to society, the Islamists _____________ tradition.
Select one:
- a. abolished
- b. affirmed
- c. overturned
- d. reinvented

Question 7
Not yet answered
Points out of 1.00
Flag question

When organizers bring a social network, like a church or a sports club, almost intact into a movement, this is called ________________ .
Select one:
- a. bloc initiation
- b. mass mobilization
- c. recruitment
- d. bloc recruitment
Biographical availability describes...

Select one:

a. whether or not a person has time for a movement depending on constraints due to work, partners, children, or school

b. a social movement participant's personal history with a particular political issue, which informs their current political attitudes

c. how willing a social movement participant is to talk about their own personal experiences of hardship or their own grievances

d. all of the above

In the introduction to Part III, the authors mention three types of framing a social movement must undertake to be successful. These are all the following EXCEPT:

Select one:

a. diagnostic

b. normative

c. motivational

d. prognostic
Question 10
Not yet answered
Points out of 1.00
Flag question

Which dilemma do Islamists face that is similar to other radical social movements?
Select one:
  a. revolution or reform
  b. if they should soften their message to gain wider support or stay 'pure' in their positions and remain a dedicated, smaller core group
  c. if they should try to build power in the state or in civil society
  d. if they should build coalitions with social movements that have potentially conflicting goals and beliefs

Question 11
Not yet answered
Points out of 1.00
Flag question

Have you developed a leadership team? If yes, how are you exercising leadership within this team? If no, what is your leadership role within your project?

Answer:

Question 12
Not yet answered
Points out of 1.00
Flag question

Who else exercises leadership in your project/organization? How do you know they are leaders? How do they exercise leadership? How do they earn leadership?

Answer:
Do you, or others in your project/organization, have conscious strategies for identifying, recruiting and developing leadership? What are they?

Answer:

What kind of organizational structures, procedures, or programs have contributed to the development of the leaders? Who put them in place? How well do they work?

Answer:

Are you delegating leadership? What is being delegating to whom? What have you found to be the challenges of delegating leadership? The rewards?

Answer: